Concurrent Competition Format

During most NSSA registered skeet events, competitors are placed in separate classifications (AAA, AA, A B, etc.) based on their target average in the event. The competitors can also compete based on concurrent status such as Sub-Junior, Junior, Lady and many others. NSSA awards All-American points for both open and concurrent performance. The concurrent All-American point system is based on the number of competitors competing in the same event in the same concurrent (Sub-Junior, Junior, etc.) At local skeet competitions, it is uncommon to have very many (Sub-Junior, Junior, etc.) competitors. This makes the North Texas Juniors Open a meaningful event in the selection of the Sub-Junior and Junior All-American teams. During the North Texas Juniors Open, competitors compete in their concurrent(s) only. For instance, Sub-Juniors will only compete against other Sub-Juniors. There is no competition between classes such as AAA, AA, A, B, etc. One special twist to the competition is that concurrent are classified by Class I and Class II or Class III based on their 12 Gauge target average. Sub-Junior and Junior class medals are awarded for first through third in each class. If there are any ties in score for Class I, II and III places, a shoot-off occurs to determine the winner.

Sub-Junior classifications (By Average) A Sub-Junior shooter is defined as a competitor that has not reached their 14th birthday by January 1st of the current shooting year and is a member of NSSA in good standing.

CLASS I 94.00 and over

CLASS II 91.00 - 93.99

CLASS III Under 91.00

Junior classifications (By Average) A Junior shooter is defined as a competitor that has not reached their 18th birthday by January 1st of the current shooting year and is a member of NSSA in good standing.

CLASS I 97.00 and over
